Title IX Policy Overview	Sex and Gender-Based Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation Defined	Title IX Coordinator and Deputies	Investigation
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Western Kentucky University (WKU) prohibits sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation in any educational programs and activities or employment situations. The Sex and Gender-Based Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation policy applies to all WKU operations and programs located on the main campus and all regional campuses. The Sex and Gender-Based Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation policy establishes a process for determining when sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation has occurred. It also authorizes the University to take actions to proactively stop the conduct, remediate its effects, and provide information related to sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. Any person who believes they have been harmed by conduct prohibited by the Sex and Gender-Based Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation policy may file a complaint with the EEO office. Any person has a right to file a complaint anonymously, but it may make it more difficult for WKU to fully investigate and address the misconduct. Employees are required to report sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation. Third parties may file a complaint on behalf of a person whom they believe has been adversely affected by conduct prohibited by this policy. Sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation includes sexual harassment and sexual violence prohibited by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (as amended), Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, and Kentucky Revised Statute 510.140. 	Examples include, but are not limited to, the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Unwelcome physical contact such as touching; Persistent, unwelcome requests for sexual contact; Requests for romantic or sexual contact from someone who grades, advises, or supervises you; Sexualized behavior accompanied by rewards or threats of harm; Unwelcome sexual remarks about a person’s clothing, body, sex, or sexual orientation; Offensive sexual questions, jokes, and stories; Displays of sexually offensive posters, pictures, words, or messages; Introduction of sexually explicit material into the classroom or workplace without an educational or work-related purpose; Sexual violence or rape; Retaliation for making a complaint of sexual misconduct. Duty to Report In order to enable WKU to respond effectively and/or proactively stop instances of sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation involving students at the University, all WKU employees (e.g., part-time, full-time, temporary, intermittent) must report information they have about alleged or possible sex and gender-based discrimination, harassment, and retaliation involving students only to the Office of Student Conduct, and to the office of Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action/University ADA Services (EEO) for concerns involving, but not limited to, employee-to-student, employee-to-employee, and student-to-employee, within 24 hours of receiving such information. Common steps in an investigation include, but are not limited to, the following: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Interview the individual who files a complaint (known as the “Reporting Party”); Determine if there is a duty to investigate; If there is a duty to investigate, the Title IX Coordinator and/or investigators will interview the person(s) alleged to have engaged in sexual misconduct (known as the “Responding Party”).
